About Rich

As a 30-year career supply chain leader and recent Johnson & Johnson retiree, Rich led numerous teams and divisions, always focusing on talent management and development. For over ten years, he's been fortunate enough to live out his entrepreneurial spirit and lead two of the largest Max Challenge franchise locations as a successful Franchisee. In August 2019, he became a John Maxwell certified Coach, Speaker, and Trainer. Since that time, Rich has been helping C-suite executives, entrepreneurs, and business leaders scale their organizations and drive business results.

The combination of Rich's corporate experience, coupled with building successful businesses and helping to improve the lives of others through his coaching and consulting experience for over five years, positions Rich to help C-suite executives, small businesses owners, leaders, people looking to achieve work-life balance, and individuals planning their life post retirement. Rich offers supportive services that are anchored in helping individuals and organizations to grow, while building a solid foundation of a positive perspective to recognize potential.

His philosophy is to give more than you get, live an intentional life of continuous improvement and total fulfillment, and embrace challenges as opportunities.
